Zero Riserva Alta Langa 140 MESI Brut Nature Docg 2007

Score: 95+

This is a special wine with the words "pianeta, terra, planet, earth" painted by hand at the bottom of the bottle. The Enrico Serafino 2007 Alta Langa Metodo Classico Pas Dosé Riserva Zero 140 opens to a pale gold color and shows immediate warmth and creaminess. This sparkling blend of 85% Pinot Nero and 15% Chardonnay is very inviting. You get poached pear and peach with toasted almond and baked bread. The texture is soft and rich with fine, soft beading that keeps the wine lively and fresh to the end. It ages on the lees for a whopping 140 months, or 12 years. In fact, the winery claims that this is the longest-aging sparkling wine produced in Italy. A precious few 890 bottles were made (and my sample was disgorged at the end of January 2020).

The Enrico Serafino 2013 Alta Langa Metodo Classico Riserva Pas Dosé Zero is a delicate and fine expression that shows detailed aromas of grapefruit, cut grass, melon, crushed stone and talc powder. The wine's beading is tight and sharp. This sparkling wine is made with the Nebbiolo grape, specifically the Picotener subvariety that this estate has so dutifully brought back to life. The wine represents a blend of fruit from three sites located at high altitudes (at an average of 500 meters above sea level) where the nighttime temperatures are cool and frisky. It ages on the lees for 72 long months, adding to the creamy, mid-weight texture. Monica Larner

The Enrico Serafino 2016 Barolo del Comune di Serralunga d'Alba is made with the Picotener subvariety of the Nebbiolo grape. The wine opens to a medium dark color with general aromas of dark fruit, prune, spice, iron ore and tilled earth. The aromas are broad in scope and never really offer the detail that you get in some of the other gorgeous wines made in this classic 2016 vintage. The tannins are present but tame, especially considering the wine's place of origin, Serralunga d'Alba, known for some of the most structured wines in the appellation. Monica Larner

A blend of fruit from three comuni (Serralunga d'Alba, Monforte d'Alba and La Morra), the Enrico Serafino 2016 Barolo Monclivio shows a dark and austere personality. The richness and darkness of Nebbiolo is well played here, thanks to simple winemaking with 28 days of skin maceration with submerged cap. That delicate process helps to build the color and the aromatic profile of the wine. Dark cherry, rose, blood orange and tilled earth give lift to the bouquet. There are hints of iron ore and salty minerals, especially on the palate. Monica Larner

Picotener Langhe Nebbiolo 2018

Score: 91

Drawing its fruit from Roero, the 2018 Langhe Nebbiolo Picotener is named after a biotype of the mighty Piedmont grape. Picotener was first identified as a Nebbiolo subvarietal in 1817, but it was soon forgotten and almost lost. It farms at very low yields, with low vegetative vigor and typically produces a more intense color. This wine does indeed open to darker color saturation when compared to other Langhe Nebbiolo wines. It also shows a sweeter bouquet with plush aromas of wild cherry or dried raspberry. There is a nice earthy aroma as well. Picotener has a very soft and mild texture, and I wonder if the grape's name was inspired by that distinctive tenderness. Monica Larner

San Defendente Barbera d'Alba 2017

Score: 93

A big, juicy barbera with lots of crushed-berry, chocolate, wet-earth and bark character. It's full-bodied with tension and focus. Excellent. Really excellent. Drink or hold.

San Defendente Barbera d'Alba 2016

Score: 92

The nose here is very inviting and suggestive with charcuterie, mulberries and milk chocolate. On the palate, it shows quite a lot of structure for this grape, carrying dark-cherry flavors long and fresh, thanks to tangy acidity and medium-chewy tannins. Superb. Drink now.

Gavi di Gavi Grifo del Quartaro Docg 2019

Score: 91

The 2019 Gavi del Comune di Gavi Grifo del Quartaro is a beautifully fragrant wine that shows the floral and tropical fruit intensity that comes with the Cortese grape. The vines are planted in a six-hectare site in Monterotondo di Gavi that boasts white calcareous clay soils. These conditions reduce the vigor of the vines, resulting in more character and concentration. You'll also notice a drying touch of chalky minerality that gives linearity and focus to the wine. An ample 50,000 bottles were released at a terrific value price.

A rich version, this has some heft to the peach, apple and citrus flavors. Hints of grapefruit peel and saline grace the finish.

Drink now. — BS
